

Time to store your fur garments

Spring is here and it is time to store your fabulous furs. During the summer months fur garments and accessories should be put into cold storage to maximise the life of your furs.

Cold storage is used to protect furs from the summer's heat and humidity which can lead to drying out of the oils in the fur.

It is not ideal to keep your fur garments at home during the summer.

Good storage will help maintain the value and beauty of your garments.

Additionally, British Fur Trade Association (BFTA) members can provide expert remodelling, fur coat cleaning and fur coat conditioning services.

After a harsh winter, solvents, salt, dust, dirt and other destructive agents should be gently removed from your fur coats and accessories.

Professional cleaning will help preserve fur garments and accessories, extending their life span and assuring you years of enjoyment.
